Using The Lost Words by Robert MacFarlane as an inspiration, teachers and practitioners will develop skills in teaching literacy and language through practical and interactive workshops.

- Work with Eva John, the writer of the John Muir Explorer's Guide to the Lost Words and Jackie Morris, the illustrator of The Lost Words.

- Participate in workshops to help you inspire talk and writing amongst your children both inside and outside the classroom.

- Discover ways to develop your children's critical thinking skills and broaden your curriculum using issues relating to sustainability and the environment.
- View an extensive exhibition and meet people who can help you develop outdoor learning and sustainability in your school or setting.

You will leave the day inspired by the natural world and prepared to explore the world of literacy and language with your children through sustainability issues and learning outdoors.
